

Fourth Week of Learning: November 4,6 & 8, 2019

For the past week's meetings, the class focused more on discussing what is ought to discuss in which the class wasn't able to play Kahoot. Also, we had our makeup meeting wherein we are able to have our activity that also served as our preparation for midterms exam. This eventually happen again on our last meeting with a different set of questions. Indeed, it is a good thing to have those kind of preparation that gave exposure, idea, and encouraged me to review as an identification type of exam may seem to be a mind wrecker as it is almost or all terms must be known and memorized by us. It is really helpful that we are able to see notes and use other references as without those accessibilities it'll all of us will surely be doomed.

In conclusion, last week's meetings were a different set in which I feel like by that time we a student comparing with playing Kahoot in which there is an excitement and enjoyment. However, on the positive note, am really grateful to be exposed in the sample of our midterms exam. Indeed, it is still good that we have time to open our notes and was given a chance to do so. Last week was a different set of meetings, and am looking forward to more new set of experience in each meeting.
