Reflection no.6-First Half of PROGCON (Midterms)

The said week was all about preparation for the midterm's exam and also completing all the requirements by having checklist that guided us to monitor our activities, whether we are able to complete it and/or know what we lack of. It is a good concept in terms of who will check if we fulfill the requirements as it is more systematic and easier. Moving on the exam day, the activities given really helped us. On the other hand, I didn't expect that it will be more on application of flowgorithm and such because I thought that it will be like the activities that we had in which it is an identification type. Indeed because of this incident and mistake of mine I wasn't able to practice it and became careless reason why I failed to give the right answers in the flowcharts and such applications type of exams.

In conclusion, my midterms exam week turned out to be quite bad and difficult for me but this must serve as a lesson and also am looking forward for the succeeding classes that we will have.
